M.A. in Media and Cinema Studies

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to:

• Demonstrate the ability to critically analyze the media in different contexts—namely, historical, economic, industrial, and/or transnational.

• Analyze the use of media products by distinct communities through the lens of reception or audience studies.

• Demonstrate the ability to critically analyze media texts through aesthetic, ideological, media literacy, and/or narrative analytic frameworks.

• Create independent media scholarship by using frameworks such as class, race and ethnicity, gender and/or sexuality, nationality, cross-cultural relations, and globalization.

• Produce media products and analyze them for style, structure, and ideology.

Last Update: 2014