M.S. in Leadership & Policy Studies

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to:

- Explain relevant public policies issues to target audiences in the appropriate written and oral formats.

- Apply an ethical framework in making an organizational decision on a current moral dilemma.

- Develop skills in creative problem solving and capacity building within their communities of interest that involves the public, private, and nonprofit sectors.

- Demonstrate their leadership abilities in developing a significant community change agenda.

- Effectively evaluate the economic, political, psychological, and social/cultural contexts in the design and analysis of policy alternatives.