

Using the LOC Build-and-Deliver Modules

From the Teachers Page (loc.gov/teachers), select “Build and Deliver” from the sidebar. [This link is also available through the “Professional Development” tab in the page navigation.]
