

DEPAUL
UNIVERSITY

TEACHING
with PRIMARY
SOURCES

Teaching with Primary Sources at DePaul University

Level III Program - Session 1

Level I Review

Twitter Activity

- Go to www.twitter.com
- Log in:
 - Username: dputps
 - Password: depaultps
- With your group, define “primary source” in 140 characters or less

Primary sources are the raw materials of history — original documents and objects which were created at the time under study.

Source: Library of Congress

Primary or Secondary?

- Source Authority: bibliographic information
- Source Use: the way the source is being studied

- Title: The first Thanksgiving 1621
- Author/Creator: Jean Leon Gerome Ferris
- Date: c.1932
- URL:
<http://www.loc.gov/pictures/item/2001699850/>

Why Use Primary Sources?

- With your group, come up with:
 - One benefit of using primary sources for your #students
 - One benefit of using primary sources for you as a #teacher
- Using the above hashtags, tweet your answers at @dputps!

Strategies for Using Primary Sources

- Talk with your group about ways you have used primary sources in the classroom
- Using the chart on the next page, create a short suggestion to a colleague for how to begin using primary sources.
- Tweet your answer at @dputps!

LOC Strategies for Primary-Source Analysis

Grade	Primary Sources	Strategies
K	Minimal text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Observe• Categorize
1-2	Limited text	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Distinguish fact from fiction• Compare basic similarities and differences
3-4	Significant text/ multiple viewpoints	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Analyze tone, purpose, argument• Discern P.O.V. and bias
5-8	Complex documents	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Compare/contrast multiple points of view• Synthesize learning, construct new knowledge
9-12	Multiple complex documents	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Call on prior knowledge to respond critically• Create original arguments using text evidence